

CALL FOR CONTRIBUTIONS: THE UPPSALA YEARBOOK OF EURASIAN STUDIES VOL. IV

The Uppsala Yearbook of Eurasian Studies is published by Wildy, Simmonds and Hill (UK). It has a broad focus including, law, economics, politics and society within the Eurasian region. It is our belief that a proper understanding of the region requires an interdisciplinary approach. The purpose of the Yearbook is to stimulate and disseminate interdisciplinary research.

The Yearbook welcomes four types of publications: longer academic articles (15,000-25,000 words), shorter academic articles (6,000-15,000 words), notes, comments, and book reviews, as well as translations of official documents. Please note that although we accept both published and unpublished articles, preference will be given to the latter. Importantly, if you are submitting a text that has already been published it is required that you provide this information when you submit your text to the Yearbook. It is also required that you provide a letter of acceptance in which it is clearly stated that the first publishers allow the text to be published in the Yearbook.

Submissions should be in MS Word format and should be sent to uppsala.yearbook-ires@uu.se no later than 31 March 2021. For questions of style, follow the 'Notes and bibliography' system in The Chicago Manual of Style (17th edition). Submission in other formats and styles will not be considered. For a copy of the more specific Guidance Notes for Authors, please contact the assistant editor Kateryna Boyko at the email provided above.

We look forward to receiving your contribution!

The Editors of The Uppsala Yearbook of Eurasian Studies

Professor Kaj Hobér, Faculty of Law, Uppsala University

Professor Anna Jonsson Cornell, Faculty of Law, Uppsala University

Associate Professor Martin Kragh, Head of the Russia and Eurasia Programme at the Swedish Institute of International Affairs, Research Fellow, Institute for Russian and Eurasian Studies, Uppsala University

The Yearbook seeks to be scholarly and practical, lively and readable. Rather than ignoring issues, it is believed that confronting issues from multiple perspectives is a better way of understanding the past, the present and the future development of the Eurasian area.
